CHURCH GETS COPY OF HOTEL MARCH

Samuel K. Nainoa, a young Hawaiian musician, is one of the latest composers of Hawaiian music of the dextro-tempo kind. Young Nainoa is a member and the manager of the Solomon Hiram Kawaihau Glee Club. He is not only a musician and composer, but is also something of an artist.

At the Valentine Dance at the Hawaiian Hotel the Glee Club presented to Manager Church the music of a new two-step. The cover was attractively illustrated by Nainoa and was quite a handsome design in colors. There was a border of the yellow lima and at intervals were attached the single photographs of the Glee Club, the names of the players being inscribed on the lima lei, as follows: Solomon Hiram, James E. Shaw, W. B. Jones, Jno. Edwards, M. A. Kealakahi, Geo. K. Nahoolelua, Jno. K. Nahoolelua, W. H. K. Keawe, Sam. Kahi, Jas. Kulolua and S. K. Nainoa. In the center is a fine new photograph of the Hawaiian Hotel and of Manager Church. The Hawaiian flag in colors forms a wavy background. The cover and song are to be sent east on the next steamer for copyright and publication.

The scroll was presented by Manager Nainoa in the presence of the guests, each member of the club wearing white, with red Spanish sashes and neckties, a costume which will be remembered by kamaeas when the club was an important musical organization during the monarchy days.

Handy With Fists.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—"Mike" Donovan, dean of boxers, has returned from Washington, where he boxed with the President for an hour every afternoon for four days. It was the first of a series of bouts which are to continue this week and next. Donovan talked of his experience reluctantly.

"It was the first time I had boxed with Mr. Roosevelt since he was Governor," he said. "If anybody tells you he's an easy mark, don't believe it. He knows how to use his head, too. I never saw a man pick up faster than he in these four days.

"Don't mind hitting me," he said right at the start, "I want you to hit me as often as you can, and don't mind how hard, either." We started off in good fashion, and every time we hit each other he laughed good naturedly. It was not any tapping, I tell you. They were good hard blows, the sort that you wouldn't run into knowingly. We had seven-ounce gloves. The President took his part of it always with a laugh.

"I never saw a pleasanter man, or one who gets more enjoyment out of the thing. He had as much fun as a boy, and he laughed and joked all the time. He's a fighter, and knows how to give and take blows. He doesn't try to knock a man out, but he does like to know he has hit him. He kept me busy, and I was not running into any of his blows, either. Don't get the idea that I was there to teach him, not by any means. He is a veteran boxer and can hold his own with the best of them in the clubs. I know few men who box regularly in athletic clubs who can worst him.

"I have arranged to go down several more times to box with him and to give lessons to Theodore, Jr."

A New Use for Sugar.

A novel use for sugar has recently been found in England, and solutions of this substance have been shown to be most effective for preserving timber. The process consists in placing the timber in a boiler and then pumping in a solution of beet sugar, which enters the wood, taking the place of the air and being thus treated is then heated in an even and dried, the drying depending upon the variety of the wood.

The result of the treatment is that all kinds of wood are made tougher, heavier and more durable, while, in particular, soft woods are thus rendered not only more useful, but also more ornamental when planed and polished.

An important application of the treatment is to fresh and unseasoned timber, which then can be used immediately without danger of warping or shrinking. The sugar permeates the wood so thoroughly that it ceases to be porous, and, consequently, more sanitary, while the treated timber is under many conditions much stronger. Resistance to dry rot is another claim made for this treatment, and it is also believed that by adding poison to the sugar solution it will be rendered proof against certain ants and other insects which are very destructive of timber in tropical countries.—Harper's Weekly.
